A large, industrial-grade X-ray fluorescence (XRF) spectrometer. It consists of a main rectangular body with a handle on top and a control panel on the side featuring a red emergency stop button and a green power button. A detector unit, labeled '10000', is mounted on top and emits a thin orange beam of light onto a sample placed on a stage. The sample stage has a metal plate with a small metal component on it. The main body has several circular ventilation holes on its side.
